

Abstract of the Disclosure

A method for irrigation of a wound, said method comprising a reservoir housing containing a wound irrigation solution and a discharge means attachable thereto, said discharge means having at least one port therethrough wherein said port, or ports forms a 5 nozzle for directing a pressurized dispersed stream of said solution.